End of Year Show 2013

Published 4th July

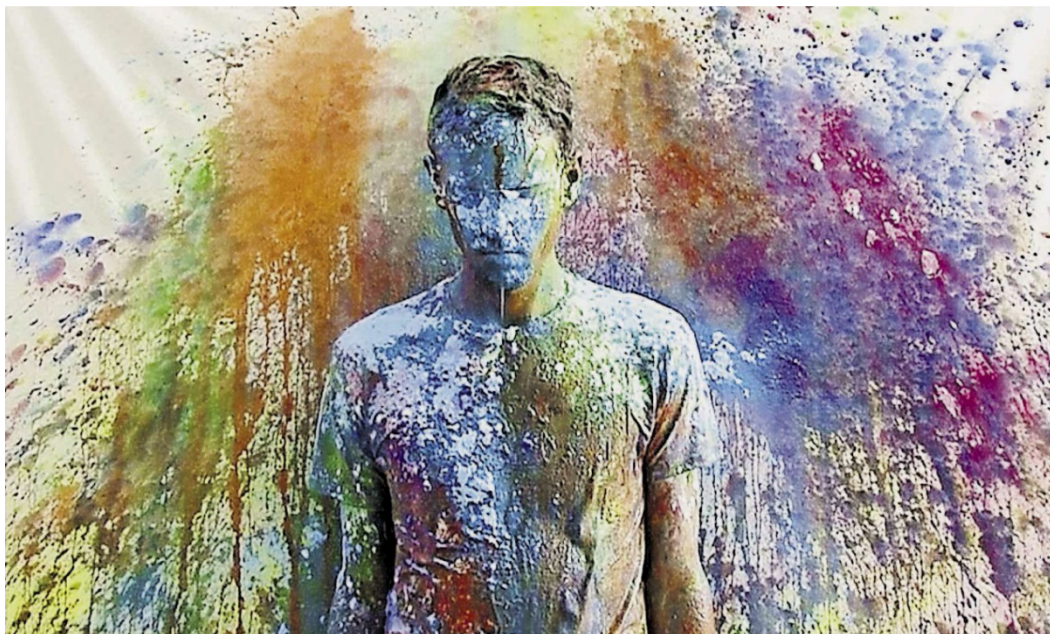

Record numbers of guests attended our End of Year Show, 'THIS IS NOT THE END' at both Blenheim Walk and Vernon Street.

The show attracted great press coverage, featuring live on BBC1's Look North on the Private View evening. Alex Dodgson BA (Hons) Fine Art third year student performed live, using his body as a canvas and encouraging visitors to throw paint at him, including the Mayor of Leeds.

The show featured a broad range of exciting creative work from graphic design, furniture, jewellery, print, painting, sculpture, animation, film, textiles, interior design, illustration, advertising, digital games, fashion, fine art, photography, visual communication and much more.

The show was received very well by industry professionals, friends and family, who were inspired by the work presented. Thanks to all staff and students involved to make the exhibition such a success.

If you would like to revisit the exhibition, the College commissioned Tom Bone, a BA (Hons) Digital Film, Games & Animation student to film the Private View at Blenheim Walk. He's produced a brilliant short film that can be viewed here.
